President Carter filed two formal reports when he was governor of Georgia describing his observation of an unidentified flying object to organizations that collect and promote UFO sightings as unexplained phenomena. Carter filed a handwritten report in July 1973, when the International UFO Bureau in Oklahoma City sent him a printed form and asked him to fill it out and describe his UFO experience.

Carter filed a typewritten report three months later when the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena in Kensington, Md., sent him a similar form.

Both organizations wrote to Carter after he offhandedly mentiond it at a Southern governors conference. Carter was quoted in several Southern newspapers as saying: "I don't laugh at people any more when they say they've seen UFOs, because I've seen one myself."

"The president's sighting was not an outstanding one," recalled Heydon Hewes, who directs the UFO Bureau out of his Oklahoma City home and has begun to give prominence to Carter's experience in speeches he has made about UFOs. "What was outstanding is that it showed a new openmindedness of people like President Carter and a breakthrough in people's atti-tudes toward UFOs."

A year ago during the presidential campaign, Carter laughed off a report that he had seen a UFO one night in 1969 in southwest Geogia. He desirifed against light in the admitted seeing a light in the sky he could not identify but did not call it a UFO.

residents of the Fraser Canvon over a proposed pesticide spraying program to combat the area's severe spruce budworm infestation is understandable. No one would voluntarily stand beneath a shower of poisonous chemicals whose long-term effects we are only beginning to understand. Even backyard gardeners know enough about the potency of diazinon or methoxychlor to use them with extreme care on vegetables and fruit trees in their small garden plots.

Imagine then spraying 100,000 acres with such chemicals. The forest service says it will use helicopters, which are manoeuvrable, and station men with radios on the ground to guide the airborne sprayers - away from streams and creeks, but almost certainly some of the chemicals will enter the Fraser watershed. The sprays to be used are Orthene and Seven-4. which the forest service says are safe for use in such circum-

The sprays to be used against the budworm will kill other insects in the area - domestic honeybees among them. The chemicals will fall indiscriminately on the infested Douglas fir, balsam and spruce and ground-level brush and foliage. Beef cattle graze in the area to be sprayed: they will pick up some of the chemical and, since there is indication that at least orthene accumulates (like DDT) in tissues, so will humans who eat their meat.

The dangers associated with spraying are considerable, and the decision to proceed was certainly not made lightly. The program had to be approved by the interdepartmental pesticide committee, which consists of expert biologists, chemists, insect specialists and so on. No one suggests the decision was made rashly or hastily. Certainly not.

The forest service says it is urgent that the spraying be carried out this year, but as more than one Fraser Canyon resident has pointed out, it has known of the budworm infestation for eight years. The insect is cyclical, too, they admit. It might disappear next year by itself. Logging and removal of the diseased timber and reforestation is a possible alternative that is certainly not much more expensive than spraying.

Another Coat of Paint Rather Than Renovations

Why A New Liquor Tax?

It was tucked away in his speech like a dirty sock in a close of finery, but we have detected a budding plot by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair to increase the cost of liquor in B.C. under the guise of fighting alcohol abuse. As is usual with Mair's innovations to this province's curious liquor policy, there are a few questions to be answered.

What the minister told a Vancouver audience Tuesday was that he is considering imposing a surcharge on liquor products to pay for an alcohol abuse education program. It is still too early, he said, to say how much the new tax would add to the current price of bottles on the shelves.

Now there is no doubt that alcohol abuse is a contemporary tragedy particularly acute in British Columbia - that brings personal degradation to thousands and costs the taxpayer millions of dollars annually in property damage, hospitalization and rehabilitation costs, days off work and countless other areas. And it is an unassailable fact that this and previous provincial governments, with an iron-

But a further assault on the taxpayer's wallet is hardly the logical route to take. In the year ending March 31, 1976, the B.C. government recorded a profit of $150 million on liquor sales. This past year, the figure was probably closer to $180 million. Mark-ups on most products already stand at 100 per cent or more. To add yet another tax would put the government in the shameful position of using its legislated monopoly position to fatten its already obscene gain on the sale of booze. .

No. there is a better way. Mair has indicated his willingness to change policy and directly relate the liquor funds simply go to general revenue and there is no way to tell if the profit fisted monopoly over liquor sales, on a bottle of scotch goes toward paving a road near Grindrod or the salary of the premier's secretary.) The minister's idea makes considerable sense. What does not make sense is parent determination to change that , the refusal to use the close to $200 million already in the kitty. The money is there and always has been. It would be simple justice for the government to use it now to help those it has in-

It should be added that Mair's other recent innovation - his formation of a student undercover squad to police underage and excessive drinking - is a harmless if inconsequential exercise in amateur cloak-anddaggerism. While we thought inspectors were already employed for this purpose and the image of a Chaucer student skulking under tables for a peek at a dropped birth certificate is rather amusing, it should annoy no one but boozing highschoolers and profit to the education and treatment overambitious sots. If nothing else, it of alcohol victims. (At present, the will reduce the number of students seeking work this summer from

Sandbagged by conventional corporate cant for so many years, Canadians hardly noticed Ottawa loading more plums on businesses' platter at budget time while a groaning board of one million unemployed wilted on reduced benefits.

Almost in unison, commentators clucked their praise of this callous document. A lack of investor confidence was more important than record unemployment levels. None of these analysts men tioned, however, that Ottawa's own figures showed unprecedented foreign investment during the same period when domestic corporations sulked in business remains defensive and sensitive about its image. Perhaps a few figures sues (read lobby). It's avowed aims are about its image. Perhaps a few figures from Statistics Canada will explain the need for all this posturing.

According to 1971 compilations (the latest available) 83 firms out of a total of 21,998 incorporated companies control 46 per cent of the assets (23 billion of $50 billion) and make 43 per cent of the profit ($1.6 billion of $3.7 billion) in Canadian nufacturing. This suggests that corporate capitalism is a far cry from competitive capitalism.

As Eric Kierans, a former cabinet nister in both Ottawa and Quebec says: When 1,000 corporations control 69 per cent of the corporate assets in Canada then it is childish to suggest that the remaining 300,000 corporations can provide meaningful competition."

Did you know that in the areas of motor vehicles, glass manufacturing, sugar refining, cotton yarn and cloth, tobacco and beer, four firms in each sector control more than 90 per cent of the Canadian out put? Yes indeed, let's "free enterprise

Between 1970 and 1975 corporate profits increased 131 per cent. Admittedly, gains have been slow this past year, but look at corporate income tax paid during the five golden years.

to create a thriving economy, more jobs, and not surprisingly "to strengthen the voice of business on issues of national importance

If the voice of business were any stronger in the land we would all be deaf Every Canadian village that rates a water tower has a chamber of commerce or a board of trade. On the national level the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Bankers Association are ably assisted by the Senate, not to mention the new BCNI ally. More business lobbies exist in this country than members of parliament.

Even pointing out a few of these facts and figures makes one feel vaguely un-patriotic. To be labelled anti-business has the same aura as being quarantined for influence of business and the drift into tripartitism should worry every Canadian.

In Quebec, corporations engage in dangerous politics by threatening to leave the province — a move that is sure to drive more people into the separatist camp on emotional grounds alone. Big business does not represent free terprise interests as the statistics show the same as big labor does not represent the interest of all working Canadians Decades of brainwashing have made corporate and individual goals in divisable: we all want to maximize per-sonal profit. The primacy of economics among our priorities has turned us into a greedy, materialistic society.

Now we are being lulled into believing in a new tripartite corporatism, where public good is equated with corporate aims. If you think that's a self-evident truth ask 944,000 Canadians who can't find

To be sure, solemn and innumerable speeches were delivered but by endless repetition crisis became cliche, almost a bore. After Richard Nixon's fatuous pledge to make the nation self-sufficient in oil no real policy of conservation or increased production emerged from all the sleek rhetoric. The same thing is even truer in Canada where no politician has yet been as frank as Carte

Now he is recommending a specific policy but despite his vast constitutional powers he cannot enforce it unless congress, and the people, support him. On this issue (if the war does not intervene) he has staked his presidency which, such ceeding or failing, must be one of the most decisive in the nation's history.

There is nothing surprising, however, in the president's discovery that the people of North America have depleted their standard of living depend on other peoples who can cut off the essential supply whenever they choose

The process of depletion has been under way since the pilgrims landed at Plymouth in 1620 and dug holes in the earth to make their first shelter. Only 357 years, a mere instant by history's measurement, separate those colonists from the modern homes of thermostats, air conditioners and heated swimming things are going now it won't take long, a generation or less, to gut the continent.

While the precise time frame of the crisis, and the best means of overcoming it, are in dispute the basic fact of an in pending shortage is not. But after years of warning from unheeded prophets like the Club of Rome that fact has failed to penetrate the North American mind in more than words. Carter's crucial task, therefore, is not to arrange the details of a policy. It is to persuade congress and peoeveryone if it is to work at all can no longer be avoided. His problem is not mathematical or constitutional but psychological and human. The test of contemporary leadership differs from that of Truman and earlier presidents because the present crisis, un-like the crisis of war, is not sudden, thrilling and dramatic. It is too dull and complicated to summon up the blood. Besides. powerful interests do not want the crisis to

The rich can use all the gasoline they please while the poor can walk between their jobs and their cold houses. Eventually the rich, too, will walk and

Carter rejects this economic idiocy and proposes to forestall it by heavy taxes on automobiles that are increasingly popular when they have already become the dinosaurs of our age. Using a word almost dirty in politics, he insists that "sacrifice" ld be shared as fairly as possible

He thus asks a lot from people who un-til now had accepted an ever-rising level of consumption as their natural birthright. The unlimited pursuit of happiness guaranteed in the American declaration of independence cannot pause, though ndence on the oil-drunk nations OPEC becomes greater and more costly

People's Good Sense

When he recommends in peacetime a minor fraction of the sacrifice always freely given in wartime Carter disputes a fundamental premise of North American the assumption that its people never had it so good and can expect to have it still better even if the rest of the world has it still worse.

He realizes, on the contrary, that the standards of living, as falsely gauged by personal consumption the most sacred of tinue to rise as in the past, may fall and certainly will fall if drastic steps are not taken to preserve it before time. like oil.

The president is not gambling on the mediate politics of congress but on the good sense of the people as he carries his argument directly to them. It is a big gamble not because his own career is at stake but because it involves every human being in America and indirectly the peoples of the whole world. What he really asks is whether the democratic process is wise, flexible and patient enough to survive a challenge not as obvious or exciting as war but equally destructive in the long run.

So the buck does not step at the president's desk after all. It stops at the door of buck cannot be passed on to our children without sure catastrophe for them.

Prisons

More people are to be warehoused in economy" if Lillooet Mayor Richard and Ald. Verona Fraser get their way. But what about the "merchandise" that is going to be needed to keep that sector of the economy going — less a few dozen here or there who slash up and suicide as business

Why doesn't Solicitor-General Francis Fox throw that extra $200,000 bonus into bolstering community services to meet the legal, medical, educational, housing recreational needs of people, young and old, so they don't have to end up in prison' But that would mean dealing in terms of human values, not big business values. That would also mean foregoing the lush contracts (Canadian Penitentiary Services is the nation's third largest food purchaser), lavish salaries and bureaucratic empires. There are no similar dividends to be chipped from low key community projects.

It is a coincidence that the first three new penitentiaries to be built in Quebe happen to be located in the Deux-Montagnes constituency represented Fox? and the fourth new penitentiary is in Drummondville-South constituency represented by MP Yvon Pinard, vicetiaries in Canada? Eighteen per cent of the acknowledged non-violent prison population could be released into supervised community restitution programs, leaving surplus prison space for individualized medical-therapeutic-vocational programs them for re-entry into society in the shortest possible time.

Why can countries like Holland and Britain mete out five and eight-year maximum sentences while the Canadian justice system enacts more laws every year with longer sentences (stretching into 20-25 years)? Could it be a way of keeping the "merchandise" cor that more new prisons can be justified?

Do we really want to live in a country where the "economy is bolstered" providing the setting for a rising prisor suicide rate (12 per cent of the national level)? Obscenity

The time surely has come to remind ourselves that "pornography" is not a synonym for "obscenity." What calls this to mind is an article on page two of the Times April 26. In this article Revenue Minister Monique Begin is quoted that she cannot prevent the import of a penny ar-cade game in which drivers are given points if they succeed in running down gremlin" pedestrians because the game is not pornographic. That the game is disgusting, repulsive or loathsome — obscene, in short — is not denied; it makes a game of murder, in fact. Pornography, on the other hand, depicts that which, if not always loving, is at least friendly

We ought to marvel at the point at which we have arrived: friendly or loving acts are counted as obscene, and murde is fair game for children. - R. M. Gubbe

Industry Minister Jean Chreneed to change the system that makes the census Canada's fattest pork barrel and provides the Liberal troops, every five years, with 36,000 patronage appointments: 2,000 as census commissioners and 34,000 as enumerators; in all, $20 million worth of jobs for the

Mr. Chretien's argument is that since there won't be another census until 1981, any new system introduced now might be ignored by the ster then in charge

If it were written into law it - it couldn't - be ignored. And written into law it obviously will have to be. For we clearly have no reason to its hands off so tempting a pork to draft the law? It would run into no obstacles in Parliaunless they came from the Liberal side. For opposition parties are always eager to suppress patronage, much as they may regret it later when they win power. Since there are four years to go before the next census the changes could be made now without risk of putting the operation out of whack. If we wait until 1981 the excuse then will be that there is a census to be taken and that it would be disrupted by any effort to clean up on the comings and goings of rare birds in this area.

Could it be that the government is concerned, not with say when there will be an election to be fought? That will be the time for all good Liberals to come to the aid of their parts and it is just possible that the carrot of a little census boots their efforts. So if the system is not cleaned up before the next election the odds are strong that it won't be cleaned up before the next census.

And it is simply not accept table that the census, the largest undertaking of not just tainted by patronage political favoritism goes into the gathering of these Canada figures, what are we to make of the other statistics we get from the same agency?

Thanks to Tim Murphy, a local birding enthusiast who got the idea and did much of the early footwork, and to Eric Counsell, vice-president of the Victoria Natural History Society, who saw the project through to a successful conclusion, birdwatchers can now let their "fingers do the walking" (at least some of it) in their searches for the unusual in birding on southeastern Vancouver Island.

Properly named the Victoria Rare Bird Alert, this service of the Victoria Natural History Society is a modification of similar services now available to birdwatchers in many cities in North America. Simply, through the Rare Bird Alert, you can discover what special birds are in town and Birds, being the highly-mobile creatures they are, don't always co-operate with services like the Rare Bird Alert; sometimes they keep moving and aren't seen again despite the best laid plans. But getting an early start on the offerings of the Alert last week, I was able to check-out a couple of the reports and, thanks to the co-operation from the birds and good directions from the Alert, find one rarity and at least look at another — even if I couldn't be sure of its identity

First, I 'phoned the prescribed number and then, pencil in hand, jotted down the information coming through. For the first rare birds — Vesper Sparrows — I was directed to the Baptist Church at Cobble Hill, then to Thane Road nearby, to a meadow 2.5 miles farther along Thane Road, and ultimately to a power line crossing that meadow. Somewhere in that field, if luck was with me, I should find my quarry.

Well, Vesper Sparrows are Eastern birds that are pretty common from the interior of British Columbia east, but here on Vancouver Island they are a rarity. They like open meadows and pastures, shunning the coniferous forest, and the farther I went along Thane Road the more unlikely the country became; the dark fir and cedar forest pressed in on all sides. But at the prescribed distance, thanks to the workings of man, 40 or 50 acres of meadow appeared in the midst of the forest and there was the aforementioned power line cutting across it. A couple of minutes and a short walk later, there they were, two rather nondescript little birds with sharp, clear markings on their heads, white-eye-rings and white outer tail feathers — Vesper Sparrows. Score one for the Rare Bird Alert! A few minutes later, following instructions, I was at the boat ramp at the west end of the village of Cowichan Bay, carefully scanning the waters beyond the log booms. Sure enough, as predicted, I saw a loon but whether it was the very rare Yellow-billed Loon supposed to be there, or just another Common Loon, I couldn't determine. For the moment I'll take the word of the Alert, but I'd sure like a closer look - the two birds are just too much alike for me to sort one from the other at that distance. So, score a probable for the Rare Bird Alert!

'Dial-A-Bird' Tracks Rarities

* * * Of course, if I'd stayed closer to home I could have done almost as well. I might have tried for the Virginia Rail in the little marsh at the foot of Ascot Drive, or the Anna's Hummingbirds on Arbutus Road, or the Ruddy Turnstone at Esquimalt Lagdon, or the Common Terns at Clover Point, or the Skylarks at the University of Victoria, or the red-naped Yellow-bellied Sapsucker on Mount Tolmie. They were all among the birds listed for the first two or three days of the Alert and enough to keep even the most active birdwatcher on the run just trying to keep up.

And, if this isn't enough, thanks to Victoria's Rare Bird Alert you can get in on a birding trip to Spectacle Lake Sunday. Dial 383-0211 and get the details.

As slow as the progress was, Schramm kept believing in helicopters as a mode of personal transportation. Maybe it was growing up in the '50s: all those pictures in comic books that depicted the skies of the future filled with little transport devices — the same pictures that used belching smokestacks as a symbol of progress and had cloverleafs and four-lanes down below uncluttered with streamlined vehicles guided by electronic sensors. But just as the smokestacks were legislated to stop belching, and the electronic cars never became a reality, heli-copters have not exactly be-come a household item: there are only 5,500 non-military choppers in the entire United States, according to Rotor & Wing magazine.

Schramm plans to change that - radically. He's already quick to point out that about one-fifth of U.S. private heli-copters were sold by his com-pany in the last six years, and that next year the total fleet will be increased about 18 per cent, solely by RotorWay

"You're not seeing the helicopter used en masse," he says, "because there's no training program for the average guy. You're talking about a minimum of $100 a hour just to rent a trainer, then $40 for the instructor, not to mention that the cheapest thing you could buy until the Scorpion came out cost $65,000. The market is virtually untapped; because there isn't anybody who has the same idea as us."

Of course, there may be another reason: The helicopter is a mechanical contrivance.

It has no dynamic stability. It just hangs from a shaft. It doesn't want to fly (unlike a fixed wing plane, which constantly seeks a flying attitude). The pilot has to fly in, and he has to know how it orks — intimately.
"It's like a musical instrument, says Schramm.

"The musician has to know how to tune it. The mechanic and the pilot usually make the helicopter work together. In a private helicopter you have to compress the two.' So RotorWay's plan to have the buyer build the craft

Slap Shot A Cheap Shot

George Roy Hill's movies always leave me feeling conned because the movie's fun seems to evaporate as I walk out of the theatre. There's something so coldly analytical about his approach to the process of movie-making — as though every shot has been calculated on a scale of one to ten where ten stands for "box office smash". I can imagine Hill watching the rushes and noting to his associates, "that shot feels like a four, Joe. When you post-record it, add a few more expletives from the crowd, and that'll bump it up to Hill's approach works, of course, because two of his other films — Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, and The Sting — have been huge successes but people loved them because, admit it or not, they loved the dynamics be-tween Newman and Redford.

A Movie Review By Nora Hutchison

The buddy system is some-thing we've all been taught to think is very cute. Hill limits his involvement with his pic-tures — he pokes around until he can find whatever the trick element is that he can put over on the rubes, and from then on it's just a question of Slap Shot, with its screen play by Nancy Dowd, is Hill's latest film, and it's bound to be a smash hit. It's a movie about minor league hockey, and the trick he's found to push is a kind of goon show jokiness that surrounds the macabre collection of players — a bunch of crazies whose greatest joy seems to be to skate furiously around the ice bashing each other with their sticks, skates, and in some in-stances, their tin-foiled knuckles. The movie's theme, apparently, is that hockey is being turned into a blood sport with comic overtones, and that the players are be-coming black - eyed clowns while we laugh.

The story is set somewhere in the north-east states maybe Pennsylvania — in a town called Charlestown that has grown up around a steel mill. The mill, we learn, is closing down, and rumor has it that the owner of the town's third-rate hockey team, the Chiefs, is going to fold it down, too. Reggie (Paul Newman), the team's playercoach, is too old to be traded, too lousy to get another coaching job, and too crazy to get hired doing anything else. He figures that if he can turn the team's fortunes around, and get them on a winning streak, a buyer will turn up.

Boosting team morale is the first problem, though, so he cons the team into believing that a Florida retirement village, full of old folks who miss the cold, wants to buy them. To get them to start winning, he needles them into playing dirty hockey — and the crowds start turning out in droves. The team even acquires a fan club, mostly made up of motley blondes of indeterminate age.

Reggie is elated. To make it more exciting for the crowds, he begins provoking fights on the ice. Finally the night ar-rives when there actually are national scouts in the audience. But Reggie's now in a quandary. The team's star player, who's been rejecting the blood and gore approach. all along, refuses to play unless Reggie can persuade the team to switch back to "old-time hockey". But no-body wants to play that way against their arch rivals, whose talents for bruising are

We never do find out if the Chiefs could have pulled it off, either, because between the fights and the star player's striptease (to his jockstrap) for the fans, the game, the referees, and the crowd fall apart, and Reggie's team wins by default. The movie cops out, Hill pulls off his con, we're the rubes and the joke is on us. the joke is on us.

Nancy | Dowd's screenplay demonstrates that women screenwriters are as skilled as men at giving out with the crudities and expletives — but then, that shouldn't have been a surprise to anybody. There's not much remarkable or unique about the story, but or unique about the story, but she does work at trying to deliver the standard comic devices with new twists. Un-fortunately, most of her ef-forts get lost as they filter through the profanity.

What I liked least about the screenplay was its deliberate trendiness. Dowd knows, for example, that she can get away with some really ugly cracks about homosexuality right now, so she does so but to no particular purpose. The homosexual jokes are there because they're fashionable, and we're expected to roar with laughter because that's the hippest way to handle it.
It's hard to know finally whether she missed getting the theme and the action in synchronization or whether Hill missed the connections, but whoever was responsible really does lose us to what is ultimately just a lot of dopey blood-letting in the name of clowning around.

Hill directs the movie as if he's only half certain about what he's making happen before the cameras. It may well be that he's ambivalent about what it's saying to him, and that he's having to work hard at reconciling the violence,

It's always seemed to me that movie titles were important and that they should add to your perspective on the "event" of the film. are not only the light of ex-ceptional talent in all phases of the fest₁val. The light comes from a spirit that is fairly general in this festival Parents are quite often to blame for that frame of mind. To have a parent who is demonstratively upset and critical of the adjudicators when you more than in most of its kind; a sense of goodwill and the quest for knowledge — yes, don't romp home with a fat mark, is very harmful to the young person's outlook. YOUR OPINION, PLEASE The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is owned and maintained by the people of Canada. Therefore, your assistance is sought by the CRTC Committee of Inquiry to determine how the CBC is carrying out its mandate, particularly with respect to public affairs, news and information programming. What is the CBC's mandate?

First, like all broadcasters in Canada, the CBC is required to: Provide programming which is varied and comprehensive and which provides reasonable, balanced opportunity for the expression of differing views on matters of public concerns;

2. Maintain responsibility for programs they broadcast but the right to freedom of expression and the right of persons to receive programs is unquestioned. In addition, the CBC has specific policy objectives established by the Parliament of Canada, which are to:

— provide a balanced service of information, enlightenment extend its service to all parts of Canada;

 serve in English and French, the special needs of geographic regions and actively contribute to the flow and exchange of cultural and regional information and entertainment; and contribute to the development of national unity and provide for a continuing expression of Canadian identity Do you have any suggestions or comments on the mandate of the CBC, especially in relation to its public affairs, news and informa-tion programming and on the way it is being carried out? The Committee of Inquiry would appreciate any comments dealing with the present mandate of the CBC to be as factual as possi-

Business Warned On Fake Invoices

But, he notes, the Better Business Bureau of Canada recently sent out a list of the names of 31 companies, all but one of foreign origin, who are using the phoney invoice technique of soliciting orders for so-called international business directories.

Such directories aren't new but in recent months appear to be proliferating.

"It's obviously a lucrative business," says Tindall, adding it's equally as obvious a number of businessmen are being taken in by the ruse.

White Swan Just Didn't Sound Right

Seattle Slew won the $110,000 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct last Saturday and immediately consolidated himself as the prime favorite for the Kentucky Derby, the glamor event for three-year-old thoroughbreds.

Even if he didn't beat much and the time for the mile and one-eighth was moderate — 1:49 3.5 — Seattle Slew caught the fancy of more racing fans — first, because he won so easily and has yet to lose; and secondly, because of his peculiar name which has a catchy ring to it.

But enough of that. Carey Winfrey of the New York Times has done an excellent piece on the northwest wonder se, his owners, and how they ended up in the chips.

along whose appeal extends far beyond the borders of a particular sport to engage the imagination of those who w know an earned run from a four iron. A Babe Ruth, a Joe' Louis, an Arnold Palmer.

The latest pretender is a three-year-old visitor to Elmont, N.Y., who holds two news conferences a week and has a pretty, former stewardess to answer his fan mail. His name, of course, is Seattle Slew. In just a few short months he has become one of the most exciting performers in sports.

After only three faunts around an oval race track, he was declared Two-Year-Old-of-the-Year last year by turf writers and racing secretaries. After two more successes, he is invit-ing comparisons with the immortals. Whether racing to the front, his favorite running position, or posing for photographers, his favorite pastime, Seattle Slew is clearly Something Special. Or in the words of Jimmy Jones, who helped his father. Ben Jones, train the great Citation, "That sure is no common critter."

No indeed. The Slew, as he is called, has gone about the winning of some $189,000 in purse money with such authority and aplomb that even oldtimers who ought to know bette have begun comparing him to Secretariat, the last Triple

At the very least, Seattle Slew looks the part. Powerfully compact and beautifully proportioned, he is a gleaming dark bay. With his head held high, his ears pricked forward, he does seem to be posing.

And if his dash were not enough, Seattle Slew has also displayed a canny knack for picking his proprietors. As a yearling in the Keeneland summer sales of 1975, he saw in Mickey and Karen Taylor just the qualities he sought for his co-star on the road to the record books. A handsome young ogger from the Northwest woods and a fresh-faced form stewardess from Northwest Airlines, the Taylors look like actors in one of those fun-for-the-whole-family movies that people say don't get made any more.

Perhaps with good reason. The Taylors' logs-to-riches story is so cliche-ridden it probably wouldn't even play at Radio City Music Hall. In 1873, Taylor — a third-generation logger, and first-generation horse player — made what he calls his 'biggest score' by buying all the wood pulp he could lay his trucks on just three timely weeks before its price

After cashing in his many, many chips, he seized the moment to buy his wife just what she'd always wanted a horse. For their third wedding anniversary, he bought her a $65,000 thoroughbred named Trangular.

The first time Triangular carried the brand new Taylor colors, he won. The raced him again. He won again. When he won a $50,000 stake, the Taylors were hooked. "If you didn't like that." said Taylor one morning at Belmont, "you wouldn't like horse racing."

The Taylors put $38,000 of Triangular's winnings into a second horse, Palladium. Three weeks later, Palladium w $25,000 handicap race. And then there was Mama Ka mare they bought in 1975, who won $180,000.

If it all sounds as easy as falling off a log, the daylors would protest. They credit their success to their veterinarian, friend and guru, Dr. James Hill, and his keen eye for conformation. It was Hill who selected every horse they have bought, including losers.

Don't lorget, they say, about Lexington Laugh, Mrs. Taylor's all-time favorite (she used to sleep in his stall). Taylor turned down $175,000 for him the day before he broke down at Santa Anita. Lexington Laugh, not insured, had to be

Enter Seattle Slew. The first question the Taylors

Enter Seattle Slew. The first question the Taylors are usually asked is how he got his name. "Well," says Mrs. Taylor, "Jim Hill — Dr. Hill — comes from Florida, which I think of as slew or swamp country. And well, White Swan Slew — that's the little town, we're from in Washington—didn't sound right so we called him . . . well, you know."

He was purchased for a relatively modest $17,500 at a Kentucky auction in the summer of 1975. Once again following Hill's advice, the Taylors turned the colt over to Bill Turner to train. A former steeplechase rider from Pennsylvania, the tall, curly-haired trainer believed in bringing Seattle Slew along slowly, giving him every opportunity to detle Slew along slowly, giving him every opportunity to develop and to get over a case of clumsiness.

Turner's patience paid off. When the colt finally started last September, he made up for lost time, winning three races within a month, including a sensational Champagne stakes. Left at the gate, Seattle Slew spotted the leaders a good six lengths. One minute, 34 and two-fifths seconds later he had won the fastest Champagne mile in 105 years by 10

It wasn't until four months later, in March, that Seattle Slew raced again, at Hialeah Park in Florida. "Wo were a little nervous," said Taylor, "about how he was going to come back. A lot of people were calling him a paper tiger." He need not have worried. Seattle Slew broke the track record for seven furlongs by two-fifths of a second. 'After that," said Taylor with some understatement, "the press attention really picked up.

Angels Get Their Punch From Frank-and-Rudi Act

You couldn't blame Frank Tanana if he was delighted when California Angels grabbed Joe Rudi and Don Baylor in the free-agent draft know you can't give up many runs," Tanana said. "In the past, if he got ahead, we were done. But with the hitters we have now, the game is never out of reach."

Both Rudi and Baylor came through Friday night and Tanana was the recipient of their heavy hitting, winning his fourth game without a loss as the Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 11 in-

Rudi's home run in the ninth pulled California into a tie and sent the game into extra innings. Then Baylor won it by leading off the 11th with a home run off reliever Dyar Miller. Palmer, who started for Baltimore, gave up just two singles by Bobby Bonds in the sixth and eighth innings until Rudi connected in the ninth.

Rudi goes on a hitting binge

A Sparkling Starburst of a Diamond Ring...

...which even the fussiest gemologist will admit is Extraordinary Value at $395.

We love this ring. It's romantic. It's pure, dreamy starshine!

13 very white, well-cut diamonds of better than average quality in a beautifully detailed high setting... with a generous, wide band of brushed and polished 14kt. gold. Either yellow or white.

How can we sell this ring—with its total weight of half a carat of diamonds—for a remarkably low $395? Simple. Birks buys and sells more diamonds than most stores in the world. And on rare occasions, because of savings through volume buying, we can afford to offer a quality ring at a price well below its actual value.

This is one of those rare occasions. A sparkling opportunity to acquire a 13-stone ring (1/2 carat of diamonds) at a very, very low price.

Vocal Class Competition Intense

Keen music festival-goers who can look back on a dozen years or more of the annual event, will easily recall that around 10 years ago senior vocal classes were embarras-singly under-populated and that on one occasion at least, the Rose Bowl competition was cancelled for lack of qualified contenders.

So it is especially gratifying to find in this year's Victoria Music Festival, the reverse situation developing to a point where adjudicator Phyllis Thomson could face quite a problem in limiting herself to the choice of only four Rose Bowl singers for Thursday. The vocal sessions extend into next week including concert performance classes involving experienced singers. But two of the most important senior vocal events took place, Friday — the men's and women's operatic classes. Quality of the work over-all was a delight. Quite excep-tional natural endowment and first-rate teaching was re-

Two young women — so-pranos Jane MacKenzie and Susan (Word) McDonald were cited by Ms. Thomson for, besides musicianship, beauty of tone and technical beauty of tone and technical c o m m a n d, the professionalism of their performances. Jane topped the class with 93 marks, Susan following closely with 92.

In the male section, baritone M. Dennis Goodwin was the winner with 89. Tenor Wil-

The second week of the festival opens Monday, with di-ploma level piano classes at Christ Church Cathedral Hall, 912 Vancouver, and still more piano at Newcombe Auditorium. Charles A. Cowie Tree Service is suing North Saanich for $20,815.93, plus undetermined damages, municipal solicitor Cecil Branson says.

IS SEX EDUCATION EDUCATION IN CHASTITY?

For many years now many schools have been conducting sex education or "family life" courses of various forms. Needless to say, in some areas these programs are more explicit and graphic than in others. However, a recent development has been the publication by the Federal Department of Health and Welfare on a series of booklets for teachers of sex education classes. This has been criticized for undermining moral and religious values, and for its blased treatment favouring abortion. In view of the need to alert parents and teachers to the dangers associated with much of the current materials used in sex education, the Victoria chapter of Catholics United for the Faith is sponsoring a free public lecture on the subject of sex education and the values of chastity and prudence, to be given by James Likoudis.

Mr. Likoudis, who has written and spoken extensively on this and related topics, will speak Monday, May 2 at 8:00 p.m. at Saint Jeen Baptiste Hall, 301 Richmond Road. All members of the public are welcome to hear and discuss these matters with Mr. Likoudis.

The Adolfo was built in Glasgow in 1905 for the rubber boom on the upper Amazon. And if you like jungle boats on the funky side— (like Humphrey Bogart's African Queen) — this is the dreamboat for you.

The Adolfo is 120 feet. Sleeps 26 in 14 cabins. Runs from Iquitos to Leticia in a far corner of Colombia, taking six days through blowgun Indian country.

The cost is $350. A good enough price but the Adolfo is no luxury cruise ship. She looks every bit of her age—maybe a little better for it in a jaunty way.

Summer skiing changes

By MICHAEL OLDHAM PORTLAND, Ore. — For North Americans, skiing in summer has traditionally been a pursuit of the rich and experienced — those rich enough to go to Chile, New Zealand or Australia or those with the mountaineering experience needed to find the hidden snowbowls of the Rockies.

That is about to change. This spring, a major skil resort has become the first in resort has become the first in North America to offer lift-serviced sking year-round.

French in Sask. Don't Want Split

DELMAS, Sask. (CP) Almost all of the 150 predomi-nantly French-speaking resi-dents of this village oppose Quebec's 'proposed separation from Canada.

"We don't want to see Can-ada split," said Madeleine Bluin, wife of a village council member.

"There are a vouple of peo-ple in town who are really for Quebec separation—but only a couple. We are Canadian citi-zens, proud of our French ancestry but Canadians first."

Delmas is one of half a dozen French-speaking com-munities scattered throughout northwestern Saskatchewan. The first Frenchman to come Grenfell jackets for "him" and "her" golfers . .

Seems to us that ever since we were old enough to hold a golf club, we've been hearing about the to-this-day-unbeatable qualities of Grenfell jackets to-protect one from raw winds and sudden showers while battling to beat par!. Well, most of the Grenfell jackets we've seen heretofore including our own were made in Canada ... Wilson's however, are now getting theirs directly from Grenfell in England ... and we're bound to tell you that the tailoring of these is far superior ... No stinting anywhere so your swing is absolutely unhampered! ... The English Grenfell golf jackets now in Wilson's men's dept. for the first time are 100% cotton poplin ... front zipped ... full raglan sleeves ... in gold, green or navy ... priced at $65 ... Those for ladies are a cotton and polyester blend ... double fabric for extra warmth ... very much the same style as the men's ... in beige, scarlet and deep blue ... Tagged at $75 ... There is also a longer Grenfell pant coat with concealed front buttoning, back vent, roomy packets ... wool tartan lining ... Blue, red and natural in these very choice coats which cost $125 ... and will probably last you the rest of your life! ... W. & J. Trapped in Marriage Hercules Was Annoyed By Dr. FRANK MILLER

Wonderful World of Animals

DEAR MR. MILLER: Her cules, my parrot, had a broken tail feather which bothered him. When I took him in to get it fixed, the cure was to yank the base of the feather right out of the tail. As you can imagine, Hercules was very indignant. I was, too. Wasn't that being unnecessarily cruel? — M.R.

DEAR M.R.: Under-standably, Herk's had it with the quick cure for a broken tail feather. Actually, though the technique was appropri-ate. A fractured feather can cause severe hemorrhage, as well as being a nuisance. The most effective way to solve the problem completely is to remove the base of the feather, which not only relieves the irritation (once the momentary effect has passed), but also allowed a new feather to grow in its place. (Anesthesia prior to the "bigw yank" would, unfortunately, be impractical and even potentially hazardous.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sister says my guppies will get too fat because I overfeed them.

Is this a danger?

DEAR E.J.: Fouled water, not guppy flab, would be the primary hazard. Excess food sitting on the bottom of the tank can quickly spoil and dangerably containing the dangerously contaminate the water. By limiting your guppies to what they grab in 10 minutes once or twice a day, you should solve both potential problems.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Conrad is my 4-year-old alley-cat. Though he-was neutered at a tender age, he doesn't take it seriously. He sprays at BAGS Regular Size regular attention. Is it psychological? Is is physical? Is it correctible? — S.E.

DEAR S.E.: A trip to your veterinarian should be the first step in the attempt to solve your cat's spraying syn-drome. If there is a physical problem, and often this is the case, then specific medication may be the answer. Should it be psychological, and this can be the case, too, then the possibly difficult job of tracking down what's "bugging" him must be begun. I've encoun-tered cats who sprayed be-cause a new cat moved in next door, or because a baby rived, because furniture was moved or the cat was, be-cause cat boxes were too dirty or rendered too clean (at least left with a non-appreciated chemical odor). He simply may have made a mistake once and then went back to that spot because of a piddling pussycat, psy-chologically motivated, may remain a mystery. On some occasions, drugs can help turn the tide, so to speak, with a stubborn psychological spraying problem. Many cats, for-tunately, will respond to envi-ronmental adjustment.

Dear Lynn and Joel: I have what was once a beautiful; healthy baby tears. About a year ago it started to sink down in the centre of the pot and wouldn't hold any water — it all ran out the bottom a dirty yellow color. Half the plant looked dead, with brown and pale green leaves. I finally decided to transplant it. I found the dirt in the old pot was infested with little worms, about an inch long, that looked like regular garden worms. Do you think they might have clung to the roots of my baby tears and caused the problems?—Vicky.

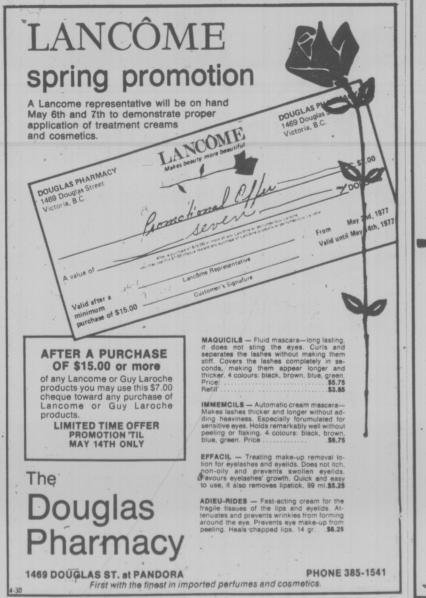

Dear Vicky: There is a possibility that the critters had a feast on the roots of your plant. Only time will tell if they are still active. Placing earthworms in the soil of houseplants is an old practice for fertilization and aeration of the soil. If the worms are of the earthworm variety, chances are they are in-nocent. When our plants are living in unsterilized soil, many weired-looking crea-tures can appear. Did you use potting soil specially formu-

Malaise Grips French Politics

By JIM HOAGLAND Washington Post

PARIS - The political malaise that grips France is now being felt directly in banks, government ministries, embassies and the streets. The threat that France's leftist parties will come to power in elections 10 months away has cision-making and events.

Prime Minister Raymond Barre's month-old govern-ment survived a vote of confidence in the National Assembly Thursday but received tens of thousands of workers joined the most serious general strike to hit the French capital since the upheaval of May, 1968.

Many parts of Paris were without electricity, commuter and subway trains, mail deli-very and other governmentprovided services for the day. Radio, television and bus services were sharply curtailed. A non-related garbagemen's strike left Paris streets choked with refuse for the seventh day. The political impact of the general strike is much greater than its economic congreater than its economic con-sequences, Municipal workers who have in recent years ig-nored calls by the Communist and Socialist-dominated trade unions to stop work as a political protest against the gov-ernment joined in Thursday's

CIA Agents In Australia -Unions

SYDNEY (Reuter) - Trade union leaders investigating allegations of undercover Cen-tral Intelligence Agency activities in Australia said Friday there is no doubt that the CIA had influenced government policies here.

Representatives of 18 unions in the southern state of Victoria said in a statement that the CIA had influenced policies on uranium mining, fence, economy and labor re-

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR Astrological Forecast for Sunday, May 1

SOLUTION MONDAY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Diplomacy now is your ally. Go slower. Gather facts, figures. Accent on public relations, getting along with those who oppose your basic premises. If single, there is talk of marriage. Married or single, you'are likely to "joinup" to become part of co-

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message; maintain low profile. Concentrate on "homework," basic information. Be aware of diet, nutrition, health in general. Co-worker talks about change, maintaining steady pace.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have what you want, even if unaware of it. Means grass is not necessarily greener away from home base. Adjustment occurs within domestic circle. Child could play significant role. Affection returns, replaces recent mis-

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on conclusion, end of transaction, completion of home repair. One who ap-pears generous could misquote you. Be positive con-cerning identification and definition of terms. Pisces could LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You gain access to information which tells you where to obtain needed papers, documents. Emphasis on investment procedures, understanding with relatives, short trip, call which clarifies sit-uation. Capricorn, Cancer figure in scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You make necessary contacts

— money that was "missing" will become available. Emphasis on protection, consolidation, the arrangement which indicates better supply, display and distribution. Aries is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Move ahead; be a self-starter. Take initiative. Be confident, direct, independent. Make new starts in new directions. Gains shown if you make personal appearances. Emphasize charisma, personality. Leo, Aquarius individuals fig-

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that occurs is quiet, subdued, intimate. Dining could become a romantic adcould become a romantic adventure. Discussions could be one ckered with subtle oheckered with subtle nuances. Look behind scenes, age will become crystal clear!

Gemini individual plays para-mount role. Give full play to intellectual curiousity. Make inquiries — express self in your own unique manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on getting serious, defining terms, outlining goals, making room for yourself at top. Self-esteem is a necessary ingredient. Review, revise — trim loose ends. Scorpio person is very much a part of scenario.

You'll get desired results!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Movement, travel, dialogue with 'unique' sources these are highlighted. Harmo-nious lunar aspect is indicative now of the overcoming of language barrier, journey, publication promise, spiritual insight. PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Go slow. Dig for information. Reject the superficial: thorough examination will dis-close truth. Money, luxury items are spotlighted. Family, home, comfort are discussed

IF MAY 1st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are roman-tic, passionate, idependent, arrogant and your forces are scattered this year. May should be your most signifi-cant month of 1977, a year featuring travel, social activity, outlets for expression. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. Your "vulnerable" areas are throat and back. Your strong points are creativity, courage, innovation.

Monday, May 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look for lost objects — you're likely to locate them. Peer beneath surface. You get "true" story if persistent. Discuss money obligations with partner, mate. Gemini, Virgo persons figure in picture. ask questions; satisfy our iosity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20); Lie low — listen, plan, plant seeds for future, review legal document. Marriage, partnership and public relations command attention. Home life dominates where basic interests are concerned. Yes, do talk about rennovation, change involving home. Libra and another Taurus figure prominently.

.* GEMINI (May 21-June 20): most constructive results.
Employment, general well-being, heach — these command more-than-usual attention.
Avoid self-deception. See peo-

Lunar aspect, very favorable, indicates love is in picture. You get favorable reactions from children. Affairs of heart, emotions dominate. Change, variety, creative endeavors are part of scenario. Personal magnetism draws opposite sex to you. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish rather than initiate — conclude transactions. Realize that property deal — and per-sonal relationship — have reached point where agreement or negative response can no longer be delayed. Aries, Libra figure in signifi-

> VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approach to dealing with relatives would be desirable. Be creative, independent, while avoiding arrogance. Message, by call or note, requires your own interpretation. The number "1" figures

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on collection, payment, bringing experience to bear on questions relating to values. Art objects, astrology, property could be involved. Aquarian figures prominently and so does the number "11".

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle is such that you should be versatile, willing to experiment, to submit queries, to expand horizons. Take initiative. Accent personality, appearance. Wear sonality, appearance. Wear bright colors. Be conspicuous by your presence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.
22-Deo. 21): Be discreet. Make this a period of pre-

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Social life accelerates. Some fond wishes are close to becoming fulfilled.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar aspect, very favorable. ond émotional wind-look be-hind scenes, discover subtle nuances. Review, revise, rebuild on solid structure.

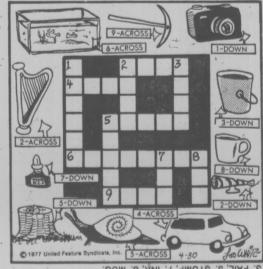

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on friends, desires, ability to make inquires lationship intensifies. mance, creativity are featured. Laughter, joy replace gloom-and-doom. Yes, do cele-

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Results are featured room is made for you at top. Family, home adjustments become necessary. Conflict between career and family can be resolved. Know it and be receptive to solutions. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

(Feb. 19-March 20): Spiritual qualities, inner beauty — these are emphasized. One who may not be successful in material way has your best interests at heart — and is loyal. Define terms, refine techniques. Yes, do some private detective work!

IF MAY 2nd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are sensitive, somewhat moody, loyal to family, have digestive problems; you also have knack for making the most of material at hand. You are practical about money, but can be extravagant where luxury items or art objects are concerned. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You make new start in June and could fall madly in love.

But in its entirety, the border undertaking is awe-

Between 1949 and 1961, an estimated 2.5 million East Germans defected to the west, most of them in the immediate post-war years. The border in those days was, lightly guarded, with spotty, makeshift fences and occ casional mined areas. In 1961, the border installations also began to be improved. But it was in the early 1970s that the East Germans began a massive modernization effort along the border that U.S. Army officers estimate is costing $650,000 a mile.

The keystone is the fence that now runs almost the entire length of the border. Construction crews are still working at the rate of about 100 yards a day to plug remaining it will probably be finished

The new fence is three yard into the ground to pre-vent tumbling. The mesh is flexible and the wire itself is sharpened along its edges so that the metal collapses around and cuts any hand that grabs it.

Beginning in 1972, the East Germans started mounting anti-personnel mines on the fenceposts, which are a few

Behind the fence is a four-yard wide ditch with concrete and sealed up the connecting archway with bricks.

Behind the fence is a four-yard wide ditch with concrete slabs sticking up at an angle to trap any vehicles that might try to break out.

Behind the ditch is a plowed strip designed to show foot-prints to border guards of anyone who gets that far.

There is another bulldozed strip between 10 and 50 yards deep that is a minefield.

Behind that is a narrow roadway along which pairs of border guards, usually on motorcycles, patrol.

Behind that are watchtowers, many of them tall and ers, many of them tall and new, about two miles apart.

The emplacements have been very effective. The number of people who make it across has been cut to a trickle. According to soldiers of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment who patrol a 230-mile sector of the western. 230-mile sector of the western side, only about a dozen peo-ple have made it across in their sector so far this year, and that is a higher figure than last year at this time.

In 1975, with the new fence at an earlier stage of construction, 600 people reported-ly fled across the border, ac-cording to West German es-timates. In recent years, how-ever, several thousand others reportedly have been cap-tured and perhaps as many as

At the U.S. Army's observation post Alpha several miles south of there, West German villagers keep a wreath near the foot of the fence where an East German father and son were shot only a few yards from the U.S. watchtower last Christmas Eve.

For the most part, however, East Germans now come out by different ways, either through other East European countries or by being ran-somed by the West German government at about $15,000 per person. Mine explosions are still heard at night in border villages like Philipp-stal, but mostly they are caused by hapless rabbits.

Philippstal, northeast of the city of Fulda, lies right up against the border and in many ways reflects the con-trasts and ironies of border

West German border villages slipped into gradual, melan-choly decline as the younger generation chose more secure farms and homes to the south. Three new ranch-style homes, are being built, possibly a small vote of confidence in

Weddings

Iverson—Fiddler

St. Martin-in-the-Fields was the scene of a lovely ceremony, at 7.p.m. on Saturday, February 26, 1977, when Maureen Gael, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fiddler, Victoria, became the bride of John Franklin Iverson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Iverson, of Victoria. The marriage vows were solemnized by Reverend Trefor Williams.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in her floor-length gown of slik polyester and Guipere lace. A horseshoe neckline and fitted bodice was enhanced by the lovely lace, as were the long sleeves, banded at the cuffs with rows of flowered lace, and all around the gown's hem, and train that swept into the back. A capulet of marching lace held a fingertip veil of illusion fulle. Maureen wore her grandmother's pearls, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath. Matron of honor was Val Lipton, and bridesmaids were Leslie Fiddler, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Joanne Lillos and Marg Blitch. They wore identical floor-length blue printed dresses and carried bouquets of yellow daisles. Flower girl Miss Tanya Mosure, cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of blue polyester and carried a basket of yellow and white daisles. The groom chose a blue tuxedo with black pants. Best man Warren Campbell and the ushers, Paul Connelley, Jim Fletcher and Bob Fietcher, wore white tuxedos with black pants. A reception followed in the church hall. The three-tiered wedding Metropolitan United Church, was the scene of a double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 23, 1977, uniting Joanne Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Scroggs, of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coulter of Victoria, B.C., and Bruce George, B.C. The double-ring was solemnized by Rev. Laura William van Druten, and playing the greentation of single red roses by the bride and groom to their mothers-in-law. Given in marriage by the mother and father, the bride was radiant in an eleganit wedding gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta. The pearl embroidered portrait neckline and the empire waist were bride and the Aline skirf and hemline of the full train, sweeping back from the waist. A Dream That Won't Come True!

That is the only way we can describe our next SPECIAL ANTIQUE AUCTION. A dream of Mike Burke and Harold Shacklford to set up and operate a Ghost Town, much like Knott's Berry Farm in California!

They came so close to reality, so very many times, and just because it won't be happening, it won't be for the lack of effort and determination

The dream started eight or nine years ago, and from then until now, they have accumulated a collection of Early Canadiana that would fill a whole town. They bought items of quality that were rare, and they bought hard-to-find rural homestead pieces, they bought buggies and wagons, butter churns, spirining wheels, blacksmith's tools, horn gramaphones, dentist chairs, Victorian furniture, oak rice boxes, merchant's double wheel coffee grinders, store mannequines, top hats, tail coats, farm implements, hanging oil lamps, early joiners tools, wicker doll buggies, relic sad irons, collectable dolls, muzzle-loading rifles, brass beds, pressed glass table lamps, a brass candy-making machine with many, many brass patterns, wagon wheels, early cook stoves and cast iron heaters. Victorian photo albums, hoosier kitchen cabinet, Mr. and Mrs. Victorian chairs, Parlor Pump organ, collection of toys, West Coast Indian Baskets and Artifacts; framed pictures and prints, wall clocks, cast iron kitchenware, and so on and on

It will certainly be a Big Sale, and it certainly will be a different sale for us and for you!

Keep in mind that even if you can't imagine buying the items, they certainly will be great to see, and it may be a once in a lifetime opportunity for many people!

"Once there are enough clinics, enough doctors doing abortions, then I won't feel duty - bound to continue to render these services."

Morgentaler applied to the Quebec government more than a month ago for formal status as a model therapeutic abortion clinic but he is not waiting for any government accord to perform abortions while continuing his practice of general medicine.

"I don't think anyone is worried about other police raids on my office," he said.
"The Quebec justice minister has stated quite clearly that he will not prosecute doctors with the abortion facilities that I have—and he specifically mentioned my name."

His clinic plans include the request to perform abortions with the vacuum-suction method, to have contraceptive counselling services and finally to train other doctors in the procedures of his clinic.

"I'd like to establish the principle of free-standing clin-ics," he said adding with a smile that he had made the same proposal to the provin-cial government four years

"The provincial government then said it was a federal matter and the federal government said it was provin-cial. Instead of sending anyone here to inspect the clinic, they sent the police."

Following previous legal troubles beginning in 1970, police raided the clinic Aug. 15, 1973, and Morgentaler found himself in court with a total of 13 illegal abortion charges against him.

His first trial resulted in a jury acquittal, which was overturned by the Quebec ed by the Supreme Court 'of

The third trial, on the original, charge, was ordered in January, 1976, by Justice Min-ister Ron Basford and ended in yet another acquittal.

Following the third acquittal, Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard dropped the remaining abortion charges and the last barrier to Morgentaler's resumption to medical practice was lifted when the Professions Tribunal nullified a one-year suspen-sion of his medical licence imposed by the disciplinary committee of the Corporation of Quebec Physicians.

However, besides a trou-bling heart-ailment the doctor has amassed legal debts of about $80,000 and the Quebec revenue department claimed he gwed more than $350,000 in back taxes and interest—a claim which was later reduced to about $75,000 and is still unsettled.

Cures the Ho-Hums of Home Maintenance

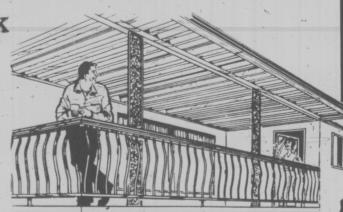

What a relief to come home on the weekend and find your home maintenance chores have been virtually eliminated. This dream can be a fact. All you have to do is call the dependable Eaton's people and ask about the complete range of home improvement installations—then go polish up your golf clubs!

Now 'til May 14th. SAVE 10%

On Aluminum Sundeck Covers or Railings Material Costs.

Now save 10% on the cost of materials for these handsome sundeck covers and railings when you place your order before May 14th, 1977. The domed skylights filter a soft light over your patio or deck area. Deep shade areas are eliminated, and the walnut or oak woodgrain finish duplicates the warmth of wood, without the yearly maintenance and upkeep that wood requires. Compliment your deck cover with these heavy extruded aluminum railings in matching baked enamel finish. Various designs are available.

Sixteen home harmonizing colors to choose from. Custom made for your windows to give you sun and shade when you want it.

Total Insulation for all seasons

Blown-in loose-fill attic insulation

Flows into cracks, irregular "hard-to-get-at" areas and covers ceiling joists. A warm 8" blanket reduces heat losses up to 30%. Increased insulation is one of the best blue chip investments available

Between wall foam-in insulation

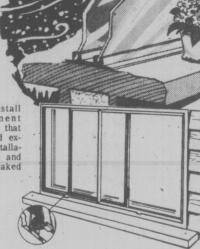

Through-the-wall heat losses can be drastically reduced by the injection of a revolutionary foam insulation material into the wall cavities (between the studs) and this material is fire-retardant, odour free, resists mould, fungus, insects and will not settle or break down with age.

Spray on Kenitex

Applied under high air pressure.
Weather proofs, insulates and protects exterior walls. Just the thing for people who hate to paint.

Aluminum doubleglazed windows

Now is the time to install aluminum replacement windows—(double-glazed) that decrease condensation and expensive heat loss. All installations include sill covers and screens in matching baked enamel finish.

UNION'S ROLE DOWNPLAYED

Saanich Ald. Joe Bourque said today that the union representing municipal employees should get no credit for "allowing" 48 student summer jobs at below union wage

Those jobs are outside union jurisdiction and therefore Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees has no say in the matter, he said.

Bourque said council believes that eight other jobs planned under the provincial government's summer employ-ment program are also outside union jurisdiction although the union disagrees.

Council wants summer jobs to pay close to minimum wages to generate as much employment this summer for students as possible.

The current uneployment rate in Greater Victoria is about 10 per cent but is expected to be far higher than that

A meeting of the union local earlier this week voted to permit 48 of the proposed summer jobs at lower wages but ot eight others a union spokesman said are normally done

Saanich plans on spending another $100,000 to generate summer work and it has been suggested that total be supplemented to enable union rates to be paid.

Send them this advertisement!

For your friends, a condominium, townhouse or apartment is well worth studying. They probably regard Victoria itself as a tiny city. To live on the waterfont in the Inner Harbour provides them with one of the most interesting and everchanging views on the Island. Parliament, parks, the museum and the heart of the city are all within easy stroll. Laurel Point condominium apartments are large. One and two-bedroom models are available. Features include fireplaces, balconies, roof patics with barbecues. The seven luxury tri-level townhouses are 3,000 square feet. For people who prefer to stay home, Laurel Point has its own library and club rooms, a workshop, swimming pool and saunas. Prices range from $60-$160,000.

So if you have friends who are interested in moving to Victoria, send them this advertisement.
